Five Hotel Gastronomic Experiences We Love in Mexico

Evan Upchurch

Discover five hotels across Mexico that provide not only luxury accommodations but also exemplary gastronomic experiences.

A hotel is our home away from home, and unless you are a chef or happen to live with one, which narrows the scope a bit, your home most likely doesn't have world-class cuisine available at your fingertips. In Mexico, there is a number of hotels that not only provide luxury accommodations but also exemplary gastronomic experiences. Listed below are five hotel restaurants that will make your mouth water.

1. Ixi'im (Chablé)

Only 25 minutes from Mérida, this restaurant located in the lush jungle of the Yucatán is chef Jorge Vallejo's second project after the successful Quintonil in Mexico City, named in Latin America's 50 Best list. Ixi'im provides foodies with an innovative menu blending local and other Mexican flavors, featuring ingredients harvested directly from the hotel's Maya Garden.

The restaurant is also home to the largest tequila collection in the world, and in 2018, its interior design by Paulina Morán was awarded the Prix Versailles for the most beautiful restaurant in the world.
